

World Book Day

This week, we celebrated our postponed World Book Day, as school was shut last Thursday due to the snow. On Wednesday, we all dressed up as favourite book characters and there were some fantastic costumes! The children all enjoyed talking about who they had dressed up as and trying to guess other people's characters. It led to lots of great conversations about favourite books and it really was a celebration of how much we all enjoy reading! All children should have brought home their £1 World Book Day token on Wednesday too, but we have some spares if any have been lost.

We have also had some really fantastic and creative photos of "Extreme reading" sent in from children right across the school and these are on display above the photocopier for everyone to see where people have been found reading. We will close the competition next Friday (16th March) so there is still time to enter if you want to.
